He will be divided internally into neat compartments, which will be labeled outside "Lungs," "Liver," "Heart" and so on, and each compartment will, we presume, be fitted with a knob and a slit for a coin. The iron gentle-man will, in fact, be honeycombed with little drawers, and in the drawers will be placed drugs suitable for the cure of all the ailments which oppress humanity. ### Fooled With Flying Horses. From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

Until a few days ago a merry-go-round made a dismal vacant lot on 5th avenue a very parawhile he tarried there. A gentleman who lives near by calculated that no less than $60 were exchanged for rides on the merry-go-round every day that was fine. Still the owner of the flying horses did not have things all his own way. Now and then a gang of toughs would descend upon him and insist upon running things to suit themselves. After one or two such visitations the showman opera company's appearance next week is pro-ceeding very satisfactorily at Miller's book store on 15th street. The chorus of this admirable company is entirely American and is twelve to sixteen years, appeared upon the scene, and a young fellow with closely cropped hair, a black eye and a square chin stepped up combinations will appear at Kernan's next to the showman and said: "Say, mister, we'se week. The Rentz-Saniley novelty and burlesque | goin' to ride on dis yer machine, an' we ain't company possesses many new attractions this | goin' to pay—see!"

To the surprise and even disappointment of the young sluggers, their victim smiled pleasantly and said: "All right-get on." So the short-haired citizens mounted the flying horses and the showman started the machine. Around went the toughs in great glee. The machine went a little faster and the riders howled for joy. Again the speed in-creased and the howls grew fainter and further were submitted which showed that during the year over $900 was disbursed independent of bedding, clothing and tuel given out. ## MONSTER CANNON.

A Description of a Few of Europe's Big Guns.

From the Memphis Avalanche.

The recent completion of a 135-ton gun at Essen for the Russians and its shipment from Hamburg to Cronstadt, says the New York Sun, French China Fruit Plates, in 6 colors, at 10c.; From the Memphis Avalanche Essen for the Russians and its shipment from Hamburg to Cronstadt, says the New York Sun, after a successful test at the Meppen range, has marked another stage in the making of monster ordnance. The largest Krupp gun previously made was one of about 119 tons, throwing projectiles of 2,314 pounds. Italy has two of these mounted in a shore battery and it is for coast defense also that Russia intends to China Plates—tea, 65c.; breakfast, 78c.; dinner use the new gun obtained from Krupp. It has 89c, a dozen; $3.75 English Decorated Toilet been said that the next step in advance underbeen said that the next step in advance undertaken by the Essen works will be the making of a 150-ton gun, which will throw a projectile $7.79; $2.50 Hanging Lamp at $1.59; a Handweighing 3,000 pounds.

Hardly less interesting than these calibers are the more familiar 110-ton guns of the Elswick works, inasmuch as they are used for the batteries of British ships, as, for example, on the Benbow. This gun is forty-four feet long, or about two feet less than the 119-ton Krupp, and its caliber is sixteen and a half inches. The diameter of the powder chamber is twentyone inches and the maximum charge is 950 pounds, to be used with a projectile weighing 1,800 pounds. With the extreme powder charge a muzzle energy of 62,700-foot tons is expected These figures show a great change from thirty years ago, when the largest cannon mounted on a war vessel threw a shot weighing only sixty-eight pounds and possessing an energy of only 1,100-foot tons.

Still there are not lacking complaints against the 110-ton guns. Those which have been built for the Victoria and Sanspareil are said to have developed serious defects, two out of the four already delivered having failed on the test, and one seriously collapsed. A gun of this size costs over $100,000, so that the loss is serious in case of failure. Yet this is a matter that may not concern the government where private works, like those of Elswick and Essen. supply the guns. The makers have to stand the loss if the gun does not come up to the contract requirements. There is apt to be much exaggeration in the reports of the shortcomings of heavy guns. Krupp has made four 119-ton guns for Italy, and the Elswick works have made many 110-ton guns for the Duillio, Dandalo, Italia and Lepanto, besides the 105-to guns for the Andrea Dosia, the Francisco Lauria and the Morosini. The French have also many heavy guns, although none of quite as great weight as the Krupps and Armstrongs
